

9.5. Gender equality

The right to equality is the foundation of the European policies; it is essential for further development of the society and must be equally applied to all aspects of life. The government will promote gender equality in their policies, with particular emphasis on reducing inequalities in the labor market. Government policy will be focused to meet the following specific objectives:

- Gender equality in the labor market, political and public life

The government will adopt positive measures to support women in politics and economy, encourage female entrepreneurship and training for jobs that are in demand in the labor market, and to help reconcile family and working life of workers of both sexes.

- Protection of the victims of domestic violence

The government will improve the system of prevention and protection against all forms of violence, provide a larger number of shelters for women and children victims of domestic violence and provide them with protection and adequate legal and financial assistance.
